

Travel tips

There are a number of ways to get to Dresden (all more or less equally interesting ..!).

The only direct flight to Dresden from London is with CityJet from CityAirport: <http://www.cityjet.com/>. From the airport, there's a tram to Dresden Hauptbahnhof (the main rail station).

Other airlines offer connecting flights from a range of places (e.g. Lufthansa, BA, etc.)

It's also possible to fly to Berlin:

- flight to Berlin Tegel; then the bus to the main rail station (i.e. the Hauptbahnhof), then the train to Dresden (Eurocity, every two hours starting from 08:46, takes 2:15 and €40 one way)
- flight to Berlin Schönefeld; then direct Buses to Dresden:

<https://www.adac-postbus.de> or <https://www.berlinlinienbus.de>

The closest airport is in fact Prague! <http://www.pragueairport.co.uk/> From the airport one can get to the main rail station in Prague, and from there to Dresden via train (c. 2.5 hours, direct trains every 2 hours, via DeutscheBahn): http://www.bahn.com/p_en/view/index.shtml And Easyjet flies to Prague from a number of locations: <http://www.easyjet.com/en/>

